Leadership and learning are indispensable to each other.

President John F. Kennedy

I continue to be highly pleased to serve as Chair of the Piedmont Community College Board of Trustees. The Board of Trustees consists of fifteen individuals appointed by the Person County Board of Education, Person County Board of Commissioners, or the North Carolina Governor. The Student Government Association’s President also serves as a non-voting, ex officio member. As chair, I feel privileged to work with my fellow trustees, Piedmont Community Colleges’ administrators, its family of educators, students, and with the citizens of the communities served by the College.

Among the many responsibilities of the Board of Trustees, we endeavor to embrace the mission and vision of the college because it is at the center of our efforts and commitment to provide citizens with necessary skills to function in today’s global workforce, live quality lives, and contribute to the economic, educational, and cultural success of communities indefinitely.

Our gratitude is extended to the College for all its efforts to build partnerships that assist businesses, industries, and the College; benefit students and families, and nurture authentic communities within and beyond the boundaries of the College campus. We further extend our appreciation to the Foundation, Alumni, Businesses, Corporations, Friends, Donors, and Neighbors who help to transform lives and invest in the future success of people. People success is our goal!

Mrs. Maggie Whitt
Chair

Our Board of Trustees

Mission
Piedmont Community College enriches lives by providing lifelong learning, educational and training programs for today’s global workforce and cultural opportunities for Person and Caswell Counties.

Vision
Piedmont Community College strives to be the leading contributor to the economic, educational and cultural vitality of our communities.
Dr. Walter C. Bartlett
President

As President of Piedmont Community College, I take pride in the College’s efforts to forge partnerships and collaborations that benefit the communities we serve and strengthen the College as a whole. As the training needs of the businesses and industries we serve have changed over the past decade, PCC has also adapted to meet those needs and to provide the education and training required for today’s global workforce.

I am very proud of the efforts of the College’s Workforce Certification Academy© and the creative approach it has taken to meet the training needs of local industries such as Spuntech and Eaton. This program has become a model for the state and is helping people in our community get back to work.

The College also is making a difference through its leadership of the Kirby Rebirth: Upstairs-Uptown project, a partnership with Person County Government, and through its involvement in planning for the future use of the Historic Helena School property in southern Person County.

All of these efforts are made possible by you, the community. I thank you for your support of Piedmont Community College, and I look forward to a strong future of working together.

2014–15 Annual Priorities

1. Articulation to Piedmont Community College
   • From traditional and charter public schools
   • From Continuing Education programs to Curriculum programs (Adult Basic Skills and Occupational Extension)

2. Retention for Associate Degree Programs

3. Succession Planning designed to promote PCC internal personnel development (i.e., individual career coaching/advising/mentoring for staff, faculty and administrators)

4. Responsiveness to Community Needs by creating and enhancing educational and training opportunities

Learning/Teaching: The College enables creative teachers, through critical thought, not only to teach the learner but also to learn from the learner.

Economic Development: The College acts as a catalyst by providing leadership and state-of-the-art education and training for economic and workforce development.

Accessibility: The College provides affordable and accessible education and training.

Diversity/Globalism: The College builds understanding and appreciation of diverse cultures and helps students understand their roles as global citizens.

Ethics: The College values the principles of personal ethics, integrity, academic honesty, civic responsibility, and accountability.

Resources: The College provides lifelong learning, cultural opportunities, youth outreach, civic service, and public spaces.

Service: The College serves the community by supporting its needs and goals.
A new and improved Bookstore welcomed PCC students when they returned to the Person County Campus for Fall Semester 2013 classes. The upgraded facility nearly doubled in size and provided an open and airy space with lots of natural light and room for customers to shop. Bookstore manager Tammy Morris said the new layout is much more customer friendly. “It is easy for students to get in and out with the traffic patterns that were set up. The check-out area was deliberately designed to be efficient and functional.”

To prove her point, Melton said that on a single day, Jan. 6, the first day of Spring Semester 2014, the Bookstore served 330 customers! “It didn’t feel chaotic, and people were not on top of each other. We could not have done it in our old space,” she said.

What do PCC students think of the new Bookstore? “Their response has been overwhelmingly positive,” said Morris.
PCC hosted a visit by North Carolina Secretary of Commerce Sharon Decker to Person County, where she met with local leaders to discuss economic development and planning for the future. While at PCC, Secretary visited PCC’s Electrical Power Production Technology classroom, where she met students and instructors and learned how the College is preparing students for power production careers.

PCC was featured on WUNC-TV’s news program, NC Now, in a documentary film highlighting the College’s history, programs, and services to Person and Caswell counties. Dr. Walter Bartlett, PCC President, pictured at right, and producer/videographer Rick Sullivan, discussed PCC’s commitment to science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) courses with an addition of the arts (STEAM) as important in preparing the local workforce for today’s careers.

You can learn more about PCC by listening to its radio show, PCC Today, on Radio Roxboro (WKRX 96.7 FM). Bonnie Davis, Director, Public Information at PCC, hosts the interview show that airs Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m. and Thursdays at 2:05 p.m. Interviews with PCC faculty, staff, and students focus on College and community events, programs, outstanding students, and other items of interest to the community. Tune in and keep up with what’s happening at PCC all year long!
Reaffirmation of Accreditations by SACSCOC

It’s official: The Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACSCOC) has reaffirmed PCC’s accreditation!

SACSCOC completed a year-long review of PCC policies, programs and procedures in 2013 and approved reaccreditation for the College through 2023. Accreditation by the Commission on Colleges demonstrates the quality of PCC degrees, diplomas and certificates to employers, transfer institutions and College funding sources and reassures PCC students that they are getting the best educational opportunities available.

“This approval could not have been achieved without the hard work of faculty and staff throughout the College who assisted with preparation for the review and participated in the campus interviews conducted by the visiting committee from the Commission. The effective College response to extensive changes in the accreditation process since the previous Commission review in 2003 underscores the magnitude of this achievement,” said Dr. Walter Bartlett, PCC President.

Kirby Rebirth

Excitement for the Kirby Rebirth: Upstairs-Uptown project has grown as Piedmont Community College has raised just over $320,000 for the original upstairs renovation plans, plus an additional $94,000 for façade restoration. The Kirby Rebirth campaign began with a gift from Roxboro Savings Bank in the amount of $50,000.

New funders to the project include the Eaton Charitable Fund ($30,000), Roxboro Rotary Club ($10,000), Union Bank ($10,000), Roxboro Woman’s Club ($5,000), PCC’s Phi Theta Kappa ($5,000). In addition, a $175,000 grant from the Main Street Solutions Fund will support the upstairs renovation and bring additional awareness to the project through its façade restoration.

Brockwell Associates, Inc., an Architectural and Planning firm from Durham has been brought on board to oversee the project. Legacy Builders Co., LLC, a local contractor, has also been asked to join the team.

Construction will begin in the Learning Studios, followed by the elevator installation and renovation of 1,000 square feet of the second floor this year.
PCC partnered with other community organizations to sponsor Jingle on Main in Uptown Roxboro in December. The event heralds the holiday season with luminaries on Main Street, live music, lighting of the uptown Christmas tree, horse-drawn wagon rides, photos with Santa, art exhibits, and even a holiday movie at the Kirby Theater. This year’s Jingle on Main will be held on Dec. 5.
PCC’s Alpha Upsilon Theta Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa (PTK) honor society sold out the Kirby Theater in Uptown Roxboro at its one-night talent show, Rockin’ in Roxboro, on Jan. 25, 2014. The student-led event benefitted the Kirby Rebirth: Upstairs-Uptown project to renovate the second floor of the historic Kirby Cultural Arts Complex. The event earned over $6,000 for the Kirby Rebirth. Thirteen-year-old Precious Boyd wowed the celebrity judges to be named the winner, and Person County teacher Tina Powell Kennedy was named runner-up. One of the judges, Mike Morse, co-host of WNCN-TV’s My Carolina Today show, invited Precious to appear and perform live on his television show the week after the competition. “Never in my wildest dreams did I expect that we would have over 600 people attend in a great show of support for our local contestants and for the Kirby,” said PTK member Teresa Burch, who chaired the event.

Tri-FUN-a-thon

A cold spring day kept participants on the move in PCC’s third annual Tri-FUN-a-thon, held Saturday, May 4, on PCC’s Person County Campus. The event featured a 5K run/walk, a one mile fun run/walk, and a one- or two-round disc golf tournament. Person Memorial Hospital co-sponsored the event and held a health fair for attendees. Event proceeds support PCC student scholarships. This year’s Tri-FUN-a-thon will be held Saturday, May 3.
PCC students in Caswell County raked, weeded, planted, entertained daycare children, cooked, took down kitchen cabinets, performed routine hair and nail services, and taught proper hand washing last fall during Day to Engage, an event that invited college students to get involved in their community. The event is part of the Dan River Center for Community Change collaborative service learning initiative and focuses on education, financial literacy, neighborhood revitalization, and health and wellness. The goal of Day to Engage is to make students aware of volunteer opportunities and to encourage them to become engaged in their communities. Over 250 PCC students and faculty volunteers have participated in Day to Engage since 2012.
Michael Chaney, who aspires to become a lawyer or judge, has found plenty of ways to develop his leadership at PCC. He is vice president of the PCC Student Government Association and the Phi Theta Kappa National Honor Society. He is a member of the College’s chapter of the National Society of Leadership and Success and the Student Activities Council and holds or has held membership in several other college clubs. Michael also has been active in 4-H programs, participating in the Person County Teen Court program for five years and dedicating over 350 hours of service as a teen attorney and currently as a Judge for the program. He also currently serves as State 4-H Council Vice President and was North Central District 4-H President last year. He has served several years on the Person County 4-H Council. Michael received an A.A.S. degree in Criminal Justice in May 2013 and will graduate in May with an Associate in Arts Transfer Degree. He plans to continue his education and major in political science and philosophy.

“I have met and developed relationships with so many people because of the leadership opportunities that I have had,” said Michael. “As the NC State 4-H Council Vice President, I have had the privilege of serving over 237,000 youth in the State of North Carolina. I have seen how great leadership should work, and I value it. There are few feelings better than positively inspiring someone to “be the change” they wish to see in the world. It’s my hope to pass on that feeling and enable others to experience it for themselves.”
Dallas Herring Achievement Award Nominee Teresa Burch

More than 20 years after she graduated from high school and motivated by the closing of her place of employment, Teresa Welch Burch returned to PCC to work towards an Associate in Applied Science degree in Accounting. This wife and mother of two has worked hard and has a cumulative grade point average (GPA) of 3.77 and a 3.90 GPA in her major, all while holding down a job and looking after her family. Described by faculty members as “the perfect student,” Teresa was inducted into Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society and became one of its most active members. She organized and directed a highly successful Honors in Action project called Rockin’ in Roxboro. This one-night talent show at the Kirby Theater raised nearly $6,000 for the Kirby Rebirth: Upstairs-Uptown project to renovate the second floor of the Kirby Cultural Arts Complex. Playing to a full house, the show brought public attention to the arts and to the Kirby Rebirth. Teresa will attain her goal of receiving her Accounting degree in May.

2014 Academic Excellence Award Winner Michael Zizzi

This father of four is a former Army combat medic and already had a bachelor’s degree and experience in medical management before coming to PCC’s Associate Degree Nursing program. Michael has earned a 4.0 grade point average in this demanding program of study while also tutoring first-year nursing students. “Opportunities are what you make of them,” he said. “After completing many semesters of clinical rotations at various area hospitals, I would put PCC nursing students, instructors and its nursing program as a whole up against any.”

R.J. Reynolds Excellence in Teaching Award Heather Barker

PCC instructor Heather Barker was named one of 10 semi-finalists in the 2013 North Carolina Community College System’s R.J. Reynolds Excellence in Teaching Award competition. Barker has taught math at PCC in 2010 and is co-leader for PCC’s Travel Abroad program. She completed the Quality Matters Certification process for her courses, was involved in the redesign of the College’s developmental math curriculum, and serves on the Quality Enhancement Plan Committee and its QR4 Marketing Team and its Faculty and Support Team.

Preparing the WORKFORCE

The success of PCC’s Workforce Certification Academy® (WCA) drew the attention of other North Carolina community colleges and received state and national recognition this year. Dr. Doris Carver, Vice President, Continuing Education, and WCA graduate Gordon Foote were featured in an interview with host and managing producer Mitchell Lewis on the state-wide program, NC Now, on WUNC-TV. Dr. Scott Ralls, President, North Carolina Community College System, included information about the WCA in remarks he made during a Congressional hearing in Washington, D.C. Dr. Carver and WCA staff presented the WCA during the 2013 Economic Development Conference as well as to other groups. Due to its success, PCC has provided training for replication of the WCA to representatives of 20 other North Carolina community colleges.

PCC created the WCA program to prepare the local workforce for advanced manufacturing jobs in our areas, using a face-to-face instructional model that allowed students to earn the North Carolina Career Readiness Certificate as well as industry-recognized certifications through the National Manufacturing Skills Council. The program currently includes Certified Production Technology, Certified Logistics Technology, and Forklift Operator training and has been expanded to include classes in Caswell County as well as in Person County.

Workforce Certification Academy®

"In the month following the completion of the Certified Production Technician training program I was offered three different jobs. I chose to work at Spuntech in Roxboro. Without the CPT training I don’t believe that I would have been able to find a job so quickly. I also feel that the training expanded on my previous Army experience and gave me a certification that enhanced my skills and job prospects."

NEW PROGRAMS

Area business owners and prospective owners and entrepreneurs welcomed a new director, Carl Smalls, to PCC’s Small Business Center (SBC) last fall. Smalls provides counseling to existing and aspiring entrepreneurs, teaches seminars and courses, manages the business incubator, and serves as the college liaison to the small business community in both Person and Caswell counties. Smalls’ professional background includes more than 20 years of experience as a business executive and owner in numerous industries, including consulting, financial services, sports marketing, fund development and other fields. The SBC is located in the Business Development and Entrepreneurship Center, 105 N. Main St., Roxboro. He also maintains office hours on PCC’s Caswell County Campus in Yanceyville on Fridays.

The area of the College tasked with workforce development through Continuing Education has both a new name and a new Dean. The area formerly known as Human Resource Development is now called Workforce Development. Workforce Development provides many training options that focus on what employers are looking for in employees and seeks to provide many training options that lead to a national or industry recognized credential.

Tommiann Hill

Tommiann Hill has been named Dean, Workforce Development. Hill has community college experience in workforce and community outreach and earned a M.Ed. degree in Education, Curriculum/Instruction from Phoenix University.
The PCC Alumni Partnership is celebrating its 10th anniversary in 2014, and it certainly has reason to celebrate. Until 2004, PCC alumni had no formal way to maintain contact with their college. Things are certainly different today when the College can count 2,555 individuals as alumni partners! And PCC can count this ever-increasing group as strong supporters of the College who have taken the Partnership’s slogan to “share, serve, and support” to heart.

A Decade of Events & Activities

Alumni Socials have been held annually since 2005 and typically have 100 alumni attending.

Affinity group reunions began in 2011 and allowed graduates of a single program area to re-unite. Three separate reunions were held for alumni of Human Services, Associate Degree Nursing, and a third event for Digital Effects and Animation and Film and Video Production.

Veteran’s Day celebration: Since 2005, the Partnership has joined efforts with the Caswell County Senior Center to host an annual Veteran’s Day celebration at the historic Caswell County Courthouse each year. Attendance grows each year, with over 200 in attendance in 2013.

Exam Breaks for students are held alternately on the Person and Caswell County campuses each semester. Since these began in 2008, over 1,500 students and employees have been served lunch during these events.

Graduation: Each year, the Alumni Partnership presents gifts to graduates during graduation rehearsal and gives graduates the opportunity to become Alumni Partners.

Pickin’ by the Lake: Some 500 people came out to support Piedmont Community College at its first bluegrass festival, Pickin’ by the Lake, on Sept. 7, 2013 at the Mayo Park Amphitheater. The Partnership raised over $6,000 for its projects, including a new scholarship endowment. The PCC Alumni Partnership will return to Mayo Lake Park for its second annual Pickin’ by the Lake on Sept. 6 from 1-9 p.m.

A Decade of Scholarships

The Partnership gave its first two $500 scholarships in 2006, one to a graduating senior at Person High and Bartlett Yancey High. This award has grown to two $1,000 scholarships annually. A total of 16 scholarships totaling $15,000 have been presented.

New Beginnings Scholarships were established in 2014 for individuals who are returning to PCC to further their education and could not do so without financial assistance. Two $1,000 awards will be awarded to Curriculum students, and $500 will be available to students in selected Continuing Education courses.

The PCC Alumni Partnership Endowed Scholarship was established in 2014 with a two-year commitment of $5,000 per year.
