What's Happening?

Roxboro (Person) Campus

Have you heard of the JAR (Java And Research)? The JAR is an area on the lower level of the Learning Resources Center (LRC). It promises to be a popular gathering place for the College community.

A Peek into the JAR

People can purchase coffee, tea, and snacks from the vending area inside the JAR.

People can meet friends, converse with each other, and read or study leisurely.

In addition, the LRC will sponsor a monthly coffee hour on the first Wednesday of every month. We will invite authors and poets, provide performances by musicians, encourage group discussions, and offer other interesting activities.

The name was suggested by our own English instructor, Angel T. Solomon. The logo was designed by Digital Effects and Animation Technology (DEAT) student, Jason Martin, while a student of Paula

Designed by DEAT Student Jason Martin

Hindman. Thank you to both of you. Please stop by the JAR to admire Jason's creativity that has come to life in the LRC.

Stay tuned for the JAR's continuing development and announcements of upcoming activities.

Yanceyville (Caswell) Campus

Been to the Caswell campus lately? If it has been several semesters since your last visit, Caswell is making many changes. The campus is in the process of building a new facility. This new facility will house the DEAT program, which leaves space for the Resources Center (RC) to expand.

The College looks forward to expansion because it will allow the LRC to offer more library resources and services to the Yanceyville community. In the meantime, the RC a.k.a. the Library, is available to students, faculty, and staff. Mary Jones, Learning Resources Associate/Distance Education Technician, is an RC employee who wears numerous hats. She will be delighted to help you in the Resources Center. Please stop by and see Ms. Jones if you need assistance.

Help Us, Welcome . . .

The Distance Education department under the Dean Gretchen Bell and Coordinator Libbie McPhaul-Moore has a few new faces. Introducing Angela Vaughn, who is the Distance Education Staff Assistant. She is a Person County native and lives in Timberlake. She has an Associate degree from Durham Technical College in Electronic Engineering Technology. Angela worked at Nortel Networks for 17 years, with the majority of her experience in the area of technical education and training. Angela will be providing assistance to the faculty and students regarding Distance Education classes and helping with Blackboard and Distance Education testing.

The department has two new part-time individuals on the Caswell campus. Sharon Johnson and Sandra Dove are the Learning Resources/Distance Education Clerks. They will be providing evening and weekend coverage for our Caswell Campus.

I am sure that you will want to extend to each of them a warm welcome.

Title: Fairy Tales

Student Reviewer: Lisa Farmer

I rate this movie The Brother's Grimm a five out of five stars, because it transported me back to my childhood days. The story took place in the country of France during the 19th century. It deals with a combination of fairy tales, for example: Cinderella, Sleeping Beauty, and many more. The brothers, Wilhelm and Jacob Grimm, fight for and rescue twelve missing children who were kidnapped by an evil queen who lives in a tower like Rapunzel. This movie is a fictional story with dynamic action characters. I personally encourage parents not to take their children under the age of 16 yrs to see this picture. It may look like a film for children, but it is definitely just a movie for adults.

Title: Love Has No Boundary

Student Reviewer: Vanessa Jonga

A lesson that can be learned from the 1998 film Ever After starring Drew Barrymore and Anjelica Huston is that attaining money and status does not mean that you have happiness in your life. For example, Henry, the prince, had everything. Money, power, and status defined him, yet he was very shallow and vain. He did not realize this until he met Danielle, the commoner, who had no wealth as defined by the century that they were living in. Danielle was wealthy in knowledge of the real world and had compassion for the society that she was raised in. This is what attracted Henry to her. Danielle taught Henry that there is more to life than just having the finer things, and he became a better person by being in her presence.

Title: Life's Crazy Lessons

Student Reviewer: Heather Walthall

After reading the book The Hog Farm Chronicles, I learned that people can benefit from the crazy lessons that life provides. Written by and starring Mr. Allen Powell, a "rookie" who is desperate for work in 1971; He learns about a teaching job for a group of boys known only as the "Hogs." This hilarious and heart-felt tale will take it's readers through adventures of getting back at older students who bully them, making a school guard crash into a snow lady full of cinderblocks and bricks, and even an unintentional peep show! Allen's book will also introduce fifteen "Hog Principles" to live by. This is a great read for anyone, but especially aspiring teachers. This story gave me an idea about the crazy paths life can take me on, and just how to deal with them.
